I have a baby of around 12mths and just had my 1st child by emergency c/s due to a high failure rate. I was under the impression that the breasts were uneven but I couldn't tell by the bra, I looked like I've lost weight because the other side was very small. Then I discovered the unevenness of the breasts on the second day after my c/s. Luckily, the baby couldn't use it yet because the position of the nipples was moved from one side to the. Still the bra was giving some pain to the mother. She decided to visit the doctor but asked me to be her patient so we could exchange the bra. I went to the clinic today and I think it's safe to say that all the pain was caused by my bra with the uneven breasts that the doctor noticed (she didn't ask me to remove the bra) and she gave me a painkiller and told me to come back if I experience any pain. I found the doctor's name (one of the best doctors in the city!) and will be using it from now on. I was very satisfied and I would recommend it to my friends. you're done reading this guide and exploring all the options available to you, you'll find that the PureGym brand delivers what you need, when you need it.
