Email is an integral part of our lives and one that is often forgotten about. In this day and age, we tend to rely on instant messaging apps, social media and messaging services such as WhatsApp to communicate with our friends and family. Installing Adobe Photoshop is relatively easy and can be done in a few simple steps. First, go to Adobe's website and select the version of Photoshop that you want to install. Once you have the download, open the file and follow the on-screen instructions. Once the installation is complete, you need to crack Adobe Photoshop. To do this, you need to download a crack for the version of Photoshop that you want to use. Once you have the crack, open the file and follow the instructions to apply the crack. After the crack is applied, you can start using Adobe Photoshop.

The run-up to the release of Lightroom 5, it was uncertain whether it would find its way into the current version of Adobe's Creative Cloud bundle or slip back to the stock Creative suite. Happily, it is neither. It's free to current members of either package, while it has always been available separately, and now has a subscription-free download for new sign ups. But first, I'll take a short detour and talk about the other advantages of buying the Lightroom 5 App separately from the rest of Adobe's Creative Suite. By buying it separately, your subscription will not be renewed automatically when your subscription ends, and you will not be billed for the third year of use just because it was a free trial of more than 30 days. Free trials are always a great opportunity to try out a product before buying it, so I'd say this is a great trade-off, even if you decide not to buy the app as you need the features it contains. All of the objectives I set out to achieve are largely within reach. You will have the tools, and behavior of more experienced photographers, but with a focus on ease of use. There are definitely a number of novice and pro users who will find many of the new features of Lightroom 5 a shock, but will be happily surprised at how straight forward and intuitive this app is. It's a far cry from the primitive rush of image collection and entry. I couldn't find anything about it that would make me regret my decision to leave Lightroom 5 as the free app from which I bought it; I found a lot of features I would have been willing to pay for.

A police officer charged with misconduct after responding to a domestic violence report at a University of British Columbia residence was the recipient of hush money payments, bribery, and intimidation, according to newly released facts and evidence presented to the British Columbia Police Complaints Commission. The revelations come in response to a freedom of information request launched by Rabble.ca earlier this week, in which we examined the police officer who searched a room of a residence on the UBC campus in April 2011. The officer ultimately found no evidence of any crime, but went on to issue a criminal charge against the student. After an investigation, three UBC students paid the officer C$1,000 as a "bribe" to drop the case, according to police documents obtained by Rabble.ca. The documents show that officers investigating the case acknowledged the existence of the bribery payments. In one email, investigators noted: "I do know there was a payment made to [the officer] with which he complied in a related case." The officer's relationship with the students is documented in an internal investigation of his conduct that was ordered by the Vancouver Police Department in June 2010. The investigation referred to the officer as "student one," and confirmed that the officer's efforts to "influence the completion of a criminal sentence" had not resulted in charges being laid for any crime. The immediate response of UBC Trustees to this information is to claim that the university has never heard of the officer in question. Tarnjit Kaur, who lives in the room where the officer searched the student and ultimately issued a criminal charge, told Rabble.ca she is not aware of her room being searched by the officer, whom she has not seen in over a year. Rabble.ca sends the UBC Board of Governors an open letter today urging them to act in the interests of justice and rectification by demoting the officer in question. "At a minimum the officer should be demoted to an administrative or managerial role in our society as reparations for what he did," writes Rabble.ca managing editor Kavita Ramdas. "At its best, the UBC board should demand a separate, independent investigation of the officer so that we know if his actions were motivated by racial prejudice, or just racist ignorance." The following are highlights from the police complaints documents released by RBC (Vancouver police complaints document) 1. Two students gave the officer a cash "reward" of C$1,000 to give back to the student charged with a domestic violence offence. The students were subsequently interviewed and stated that they hadn't actually paid money, and that the money went to a third UBC student who allegedly paid for something. 2. One of the students informed a Vancouver police officer she wanted to make a statement about the case. 933d7f57e6
